Thank you.

All the worlds a stage,
And all the men and women merely players.

Shakespeare

Roger Kaufman, Clifford Wiggins.

"All the world's a stage and all men and women are merely players."

The world is a stage on which each of us plays a part. High school is a time of preparation, when we begin to develop our individual roles through the give-and-take of every day life. Our play is produced and directed by the Master-mind of the ages. Our leaders, teachers, pastors, and parents are the prompters. Sometimes we rely too heavily on them for support. At other times we casually cast their help away, misinterpreting our roles altogether. Sometimes we mask ourselves too heavily with make-up and costumes which hide the real "us" and hinder our effectiveness in the play. But if we become overly bold in our pompous self-assurance and discard all our props, we may be blinded by the spot lights and overcome by stage fright.

And so we make mistakes. We falter and miss our cues, sometimes causing the critics to jeer and boo. Every scene is a jumbled mixture of tragedy and comedy—one barely discernible from the other. But as the act progresses we begin to understand and appreciate the character we portray; realizing that no matter how small our part happens to be, it is essential for the smooth interaction of the players in the developing plot. There is to be no Oscar or Best-Actor Awards in this play; no comparing or pitting of people against each other. Each is prized and respected as an individual and a person in his own right.

And then comes the end of our four-year preparation. We do not pretend to be polished professionals, but realize instead that this is only a beginning. We are amateurs striving to complete a series of acts on this small stage in order to meet the challenge of the great world stage beyond. To accomplish this is our goal. In part we have attained it. Our hope is that we have developed into mature and open-minded characters who play our parts well and perhaps in some small way, have brought enrichment to our fellow actors, and joy to our Director.

7 Ratio and Proportion Properties of a Proportion

1. Given the proportion $\frac{r}{s} = \frac{m}{n}$
   a. Name the means
   b. Name the extremes (2)
   c. Name the second term. (2)
   d. Name the fourth term (2)
   e. Can you conclude that $rn = sm$? (2)
2. What is the ratio of 9 inches to 1 foot? (3)
3. What is the ratio of $1\frac{1}{2}$ yards to $2\frac{1}{2}$ yards? (3)
4. Given $\angle A = 30°$. What is the ratio of the complement of $\angle A$ to the supplement of $\angle A$? (3)
5. Point X is located on $\overline{RS}$ so that $RX = 12$ in. and $XS = 8$ in. Find the following ratios.
   a. $RX : XS$ (2)
   b. $XS : RS$ (2)
   c. $RS : RX$ (2)
   d. $(RS - XS) : (RS - RX)$ (2)
   e. $(RS - RX) : RX$ (2)
6. If $x = 2s$, what is the ratio of x to s?
7. Solve for x: $5 : x = 1 : 4$
8. Find the measure of the complement, given $\angle A = 30°$, and the measure of the supplement of $\angle A$.

Student Exchange

So this is Amerika—I didn't realize that this big country is so different from my home, Germany.

At first, I had a very hard time. I noticed every little difference and compared it to my home. It really was hard to adjust to all these new things around me: my new family, the church, and my school.

I think, at first, that school was the hardest experience in my year as an exchange student. The kids didn't know me and I didn't them. All the time, I felt I would never have friends because maybe they'd think I was someone special. But I just want to be like any other student.

After several months, I felt like I do at home. I have friends and have learned many things, and am able to handle more situations on my own.

I really enjoy my year as an exchange student. Everyone is helpful and this makes it easier to adjust to my year here and makes it more enjoyable.

I will miss Bethany and will probably never forget it and all my friends here, when I go back to Germany.

Sigrid Simon

Sigrid Simon

To the students at Bethany:

A year as an exchange student sounds like a really glorious thing. It is, but with it come unglorious things as well.

My German home is in extreme Southwestern Germany, about eight miles from the Rhine and Switzerland, and about 25 miles from Basel. That's in the Black Forest, so I live in the midst of fairyland castles and the well known beauty of this area. Many exchange students have opportunity to travel, and I, too, have traveled with my German family through the Swiss Alps, Austria, and a bit of Italy.

My host family is very small, which, compared with my real family, made for an adjustment from the beginning.

The school I'm attending is about the same as the American high school plus one or two years. The German school system is based on a much more impersonal level than that of America, but the help of an English teacher helped things get started.

Adjustments to the family, friends, school, and social customs pose a problem but are in no means so great a problem as simply adjusting to leaving family, friends, school, and Christian fellowship. It's probably very much like leaving the home town to go away to college, except a bit more extreme. We think that home sickness is for children, but after a person has spent three months in those depths, then he is more ready to accept what is at the present, not only the past.

Through it all, the agonies and the ecstacies, Christ works out His will in the life of a person.

The Times Are A-Changin

Some people think that the Junior-Senior Banquet was in April
But that was only part of it.
The real banquet began in the fall and lasted all year.

The real banquet is
committees;
meeting, talking, planning, arguing, forming ideas, scrapping ideas– organizing,
economizing, compromising,
negotiating for entertainment, presenting plans to the board, spending time and energy working together learning to know each class member for the unique person that he is.

The real banquet is when the winter turns to early spring and the chapel is sealed off with newspaper.
Excitement runs high as ideas begin to materialize– diagrams on paper become solid reality.
Microphones, manikins, candles, crepe paper, gravel, grass, chalk and chairs, transform the chapel
into a panorama of "The Times".

The big night arrives!
Candles flickering,
couples arriving;
girls in new dresses,
boys stiff in suits,
anticipating a night
of music, laughter, good food, and the smile of someone special.

of the White House,
and the Kennedy graves,
of the Capitol building and meeting of Judy's mattress,

and Alvin walking up the Washington Monument twice,
of the ride home,
with singing and ghost stories, and the arrival, with Mom (and our friendly Juniors) to welcome us.

and didn't know each other very well.
But Mr. Bodiker's coaching along with plenty of hard practice gave us the confidence we needed to defeat Divine Heart in the first game.
The season progressed;
the wins and losses stacked up;
we saw improvement in teamwork and ball-handling and we enjoyed the competition.

G.A.A.

Most people just hear about the G.A.A. basketball teams.
That's a big part of it,
but there is a lot more:
a softball team in the fall,
winter skiing in Michigan,
a retreat, where you get to know yourself and others better, the opportunity to go bowling, track meets in the spring . . .

Being in G.A.A. means:
working toward team effort, learning to accept failures
along with victories, and enjoying the physical competition.

Act III: Profiles

Don Augsburger, A.B., M.R.E., D. Ed.

Superintendent

Everyone knows that being the superintendent is the toughest job in the school.
He is the battery
that sparks the motor.
His job is to guide the faculty in guiding the students.
If anything goes wrong, he is the kicking post.
Every day is filled with decisions. Important ones.
Sometimes crucial.
A job requirement fulfilled with a rare ability to communicate and work, to make our school
a worthwhile institution.

Board of Directors

It's good to know that there are people who believe in this school strongly enough to struggle through the problems of keeping it going.

On thinking about it,
the most inconspicuous part of our school is the most vital part, because without the Board, BCHS wouldn't be.

Senior Class Officers

What was the future
is momentarily the present, and soon, just the past.
Rainy fish fries,
great class parties,
the big trip to D.C.,
our last Christmas banquet.
Leadership of the Y, the SBA, Reflector, and Witmarsum becomes our responsibility.
We play our last soccer game,
make it through our last chorus program, sweat-out our last basketball tourney, listen to our last lecture, and run our last track meet.
We relax instead of worry through the Junior-Senior banquet.
And then we graduate.
We gave and we took from Bethany, and we loved it.

growing,
slightly frightened
by all the responsibilities, for—
we are now upperclassmen, banquet planners,

fish-fry givers,
life team members,
realizing the fact
that life is continuous learning, but ready to face the world with optimism and hope,
for—
we are now juniors.

We're Sophomores!
Our class is unique.
We have togetherness.
We think together,
eat together,
laugh together,
(and go on retreats together.)
Our class is:
one part responsibility,
one part creativity,
three parts fun,
one part confusion,
and two parts happiness.
We're proud of ourselves,
our class,
our school.

Forty-two of us came to Bethany this year.
We came alone,
and found friends.
We came as strangers,
and found our places.
We came unorganized,
and found leaders.
We came as tall girls,
and short guys.
We came asking questions,
and we still do,
but now the questions are becoming more intelligent.

AN EXCITING NEW CONCEPT

Combined with a new emphasis on the role of the learner in the learning process.

More emphasis on learning by observation and experiment; self-evaluation and involvement in course planning.

A de-emphasis on strictly theoretical and factual aspects of learning; on semester exams.

All this in the context of a Christian environment with dedicated, experienced, competent teachers.

CONGRATULATIONS
Class of '70

As I look at the wanton waste of the world's resources in the form of arms and war, and the destruction and heartache it creates; It behoves us all, to strive for a better understanding of our fellowman; and as good stewards, use these resources for the good of all mankind.

THE WORLD OF TOMORROW IS YOURS.
DO NOT WASTE IT.

Sincerely,

V. H. Steury, Pres.
